That was basically my point. Anyone can claim to be an actor; however a SAG card at least shows you have worked at some point.

What a fake hack he is. I've been browsing through some of his friends on myspace and I've discovered he left this same exact comment to at least 6 girls:

Quote:

> Gotta luv the snow, let it snow let it snow let it snow... so, who's keeping u warm tonight? lol

He can't even leave original, personalized comments to his own friends. What a joke.

Oh and if anybody hasn't read the "About Me" section, I suggest you do so, it is priceless.

I'm beginning to think the face he makes in every photo is one of concentration.

His good eye sees the camera. He stares at it in shock for a second or two, until realizes that yes, that most definitely is the person he payed to photograph him.

Panic strikes. His lazy eye is firmly fixed upon the photographers shoe. His mind goes blank, his jaw goes slack. The only thing he can think of is getting not one, but both eyes, on the camera.

Then the flash goes, and he fails yet again.

Yes, but is he a SAG actor? Does SAG make designations between the help and the talent? I honestly don't know.

Has anyone seen his SAG card? As an actor? Because I haven't, but I have seen a consistent stream of delusion, false promises, and exaggeration from this guy.

DH, doesn't SAG induction as an actor involve a spoken line? He may very well have one (or two or ten), just curious about his real SAG status. Any way to verify? It wouldn't surprise me if by "SAG Actor" he meant "has met SAG Actors."

Not sure, but I do not think it does. One of the guys that has played my wife's stage husband got a role in a Chevrolet commercial, and he had to join SAG for the role. His part was that of a family man doing a minivan commercial and he did not speak.

Is there any way to check if he's a SAG member at all? I tried registering on SAG's site, but don't have the credentials to search members. I realize that joining is almost as commonplace as coordinating a NYE event in which there are no riots nor art theft... so you can see why I'm suspicious. I could be totally wrong, just wondering.

You don't need to have a spoken line to become a SAG member. You can do it just by being an extra on movies/tv shows. You get a certain number of credits for each extra roll you get. Eventually, you earn enough to become a SAG member.

Update: I looked into it and it takes 3 rolls as an extra to get a SAG card. You have to make sure you get the vouches for it and it's a SAG production, but basically his roll on Hack and 2 other non speaking parts would get him into SAG.

This is the Reanmity official press release. What a douche.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: : To all of our valued Renamity following, specifically all of those who attended the New Year's party at Le Jardin Restaurant and the Philadelphia Art Alliance this past Saturday evening. Obviously the party did not go as we had planned. We have done the public relations for countless other exclusive events, and NEVER has anything like this occurred. We sincerely apologize for all of the inconvenience caused by what happened. We are currently looking into what went wrong and how to avoid such a calamity in the future. However, and most importantly we want to assure all ticket holders that we will be refunding 100% of the ticket price on a case-by-case basis. Furthermore, in our efforts to turn this situation around, we will be announcing a party, free of charge, with one of the many premier venues that we have had very successful parties with. We at Renamity pride ourselves on our reputation and are prepared to do whatever it takes to preserve the reputation that we have worked so hard to achieve. (Philadelphia)

What a PR wizard. You threw an absolutely disastrous party on New Year's Eve precipitated by false advertising and possible fraud, and yet refunds are on a case-by-case basis.

I guess if you drank more than two wine spritzers you clearly got your money's worth and are not eligible for a refund.

It wasn't a fall from grace. If you watch the video, you'll see that he jumped for Joy. Joy Winchester straight-armed him while protecting her Appletini and her virtue, putting The Cyclops of Rittenhouse Square off balance. He then tripped over Grace Penobscott.

Falling over Grace is not as good a story as a fall from grace, but when you are AD3 you have to take what you can get.

No guts, no glory

What a fucking douche D3 is in his tv rebuttal last night. The contract clearly stated "325" as shot by the camera man. D3 sells over 700 tickets. Isn't this a fire code issue? Thank God the place did not burn but if it had, what would the lazy eyed bitch be spewing today? What a spineless weasel to blame the restaurant. Look in the mirror and try to remind yourself who hired the restaurant. Who made the wild ass claims. Who posted the photos with the only captions designed to save your sorry ass. And why is it that in every other event, your lazy eyed mug is plastered all over the website trying to grope the women and trannies, but at this event, you are never seen in the event photos? Hopefully, the refunds are made available to everyone who did not watch the "NYC ball drop" at your event and not to those poor suckers who watched you drop the ball. Reputations are hard to gain but easy to lose. I guess we will watch how a gutless wonder will point the finger at everyone else and not realize that he was ultimately responsible for a special evening that he promised and never delivered. I still believe that 700 x $100+ plus damages/inconvenience/hardship will still result in a significant legal battle for D3. Maybe a good lawyer will actually determine what type of money D3 has in his pocket. The overselling of the event should clearly demonstrate an intent to deceive the public and his contracted help. Was any charges ever filed by the police? Obviously, there are a lot of events in the city that night that were classy and successful, this was not one of them.

And finally, what about that tux? Could it be any cheaper?

What a joke. The GIANT Village NYE party was cancelled here in SoCal due to weather conditions and subsequent warnings from LA county fire officials. The cancellation email went out at around 10pm on New Year's Eve. We're talking 15,000 tickets sold, from between $80-$150 each. Class-action talks are already underway.

Unlike this D3 dipshit though, the promoters have offered a full refund for ticket face value, or the option to take a higher value voucher package for future events throughout 2006. The promoter is taking a beating on this one, as they didn't have event cancellation insurance, and they had already paid their (not cheap) performers. Crystal Method, Junkie XL, Digweed, Deathcab, Flaming Lips, Black Eyed Peas, and more.....

I had to drive through LA on Monday as I got back into town, there was visible flooding in areas and a lot of the stop lights were still out of service. Don't know how serious the storm really was, but considering how nuts native Southern Californians get when it rains, I'm sure that the reason to cancel the event was valid, at least more than running out of alcohol.

LOOK AT THIS FUCKING ARTICLE!!! Holy shit, Dimeo is such a dipshit. This is unreal:

Quote:

> Inqlings | Real noisemaking begins after New Year's party fracas
> By Michael Klein
> Inquirer Columnist
> Who's to blame for the New Year's Eve party thrown by the PR/promotions firm Renamity at the Art Alliance, which was shut down well before midnight amid cries that it was oversold and underboozed?
> We'll let lawyers sort that out. Both Renamity's Anthony DiMeo III and the Art Alliance's restaurant operator, Athmane Kabir, say they're mulling legal options.
> The staid, sprawling landmark on Rittenhouse Square never saw such a ruckus. Patrons seeking food burst through doors leading into a dining room of Kabir's Le Jardin restaurant. Two mixed-media works on loan by Antonio Puri were stolen from museum walls. Sconces were torn. Someone tried to haul off the donations box. Kabir, fearing injuries, called police about 10:30 p.m.
> If there's a plus side, 402 patrons who paid $98 plus handling for a ticket will get automatic refunds if they booked through the online registration service Acteva (www.acteva. com, 1-877-855-8646). Acteva's Ed Lemire said the company e-mailed letters to customers Tuesday night.
> Those who bought tickets elsewhere may be out of luck. DiMeo said that he would issue refunds on a "case by case basis" through his Web site, www.renamity.com.
> Now for finger-pointing.

Kabir, an Art Alliance tenant, showed me a contract calling for 325 guests for a four-hour party with food and open bar. Kabir and DiMeo were to split the door - about $15,000 each, according to the contract.

DiMeo paid the Art Alliance $3,500 to rent the building, according to a separate deal.

But here's where it gets hinky: DiMeo says he and Kabir did an oral contract to accommodate upward of 600 people - under the noses of the Art Alliance.

Kabir denies any side deals and says he complained when the count exceeded 325. (Remember, Acteva alone says it sold 402 tickets.) In a statement, Kabir said DiMeo "took it upon himself to oversell tickets to his event." Kabir did not sell tickets through the restaurant.

Based on interviews with several partygoers, the promised blast was a bust from the start.

By 9:30, "people started coming out, 'where's the food?' " DiMeo says. "They didn't run out of food. They never put out one morsel of food from the time the first person crossed the threshold."

A Kabir rep says the crowd filled the lobby before the starting time and his servers could not wade through the crush. The booze was cut off when the crowd got unruly, the rep says.

Erik Berger, 24, who works for a Center City ad agency, arrived with 17 friends at 9 p.m. He says he was amazed by the lack of security. "Anybody could just walk in." Only two bartenders staffed two bars, "and they were not able to keep up with the demand." By 9:20, when he sought a second drink, "it took quite a while to get waited on. I could see the supply of liquor was greatly reduced. I said, 'OK. They're going to bring in more supply.' " That didn't happen.

After 10 p.m., he said, "people went looking for Mr. DiMeo and he was nowhere to be found."

Kabir said he was left with one security guard. Berger and his friends went home after police arrived.

DiMeo hired a cleaning crew on New Year's Day. Art Alliance president Carole Shanis said, "I don't want to get into a war with [DiMeo] or anybody at this point."

One other unsettled issue: Like many promoters, DiMeo identified the party as a benefit; he advertised a tie to Temple University's Sbarro Health Research Organization (SHRO).

SHRO attorney Dirk M. Simpson said Tuesday that when the organization learned of the party in early December, "we requested in writing that they remove our name" from ads.

DiMeo replied that Antonio Giordano, who heads SHRO, "gave me the green light to go ahead and it was as simple as that." Either way, DiMeo says he's out a lot of money.

And to think, some people chose to celebrate at home.

I have a few covert insiders in the debacle known as Renamity very juicy info to come! But for starters he accused a friend of mine for being "A large factor" in the reason the party was not a success. Now with her title a former renamity "Model Hostess", I did not know it was possible to be such a big part of the party by not showing up and instead coming to our party down the block, which did have alcohol and what not. Unless she was charged with providing all of the missing alcohol and butlered nonsense, I can only come to the conclusion that yes D3 is the largest douche in Philadelphia!

Yeah, you're right. I thought it was something it's not. So, I retract my original comment, but I think my point still stands despite this difference. This "national leadership honor society," as it's so eloquently referred to, still sounds like the type of old-boys-network bullshit that I've come to associate with all things which are pretentious enough to insist on the description "national leadership honor society".

I picture a bunch of guys sitting around giving academic fellatio to each other (metaphorically or not, you decide), congratulating each other on this or that paper, and thinking how cushy a job being a US senator is going to be once their daddies hook them up with it.

But, I've been wrong before...

So I was talking to my friend that AD3 accused of "being a large part of ruining his party", and she tells me another ridiculous thing he threatened her with. Now keep in mind AD3 is bent out of shape originally because she laughed at him for his advances, so he already had a stick in his ass. Now, there is this bar in Philly called the Continental Mid Town and they have these oddly shaped stuffed chairs. Now before Dimeo told her "I would much rather have you as my girlfriend then working for me", he was at her apartment before one of his cheesy events. He noticed the stuffed object and snaps a picture of it with his snazzy treo 650(as you will come to realize for blackmail material). Now here is a portion of the conversation she had with D3:
Girl: "It was his fucking fault he sold double the tickets and that hes a fucking idiot and that i don't work for free"

D3: "I have interns lined up that would work for free for me, I have the most successful PR firm in the city!"
Girl: "Well call them because I'm fucking done with your cheap bullshit and i'm tired of working for a loser"
Girl:"And just for the record...EVERYONE IN PHILADELPHIA THINKS YOUR A FUCKING LOSER"
At this point D3 is very angry, eye vigourously twitching, and said:
he has a picture of our bean chair from the Continental on his camera Phone and hes going to have us arrested.
At this point I start laughing my ass off due to the fact that such a powerful and successful entrapaneur that Dimeo thinks he is, would believe that the Philadelphia police are bored enough to harass girls over a random picture of a beanbag chair on some douche bags cell phone....

More to come.

So I'm out with Phillysean one night down in the Rittenhouse section of Philadelphia. What makes this night different from any other was the highly anticipated rendezvous with the infamous douche bag. At the time, all I knew is that we might've been able to collaborate on a project we had similar interests in. What I didn't know, is how much of a tool this guy really was. At first glance you think your eyes are deceiving you. A 5 foot 1 inch man walks in to the bar stone faced and just wreaking of cheap cologne. Medusa must have proud when she stoned this one. After we make contact and sit down to discuss a plan for our event, Phillysean and I start wondering when this little man is going to bring something to the table. NOTHING!!! What he did bring was tacky business cards with his distorted cemented face on the front, and an offering of cheap help from young girls who Phillysean and I already have in our back pockets. Besides the stench of his offensive cologne, and ridiculous conversation, it actually wasn't a complete waste of time. If any of you reading this are anything like us, you can always stir up a good laugh out of pretty much anything.....especially when the target is someone who is known as "the douche bag." Now after everything is said and done, Tony Tough Nuts decides to flex his AD3 muscles and order us a round of drinks. "Sure, why not." Phillysean orders first. "Dirty Martini....extra dirty." I order a Vox on the rocks. Would you believe this smacked ass follows up and says to the cocktail waitress, "I'd like a GRASSHOPPER please." Are you kidding me? WHAT THE HELL IS A GRASSHOPPER? As you can imagine, we were instantly in tears and have never recovered since. More to come. I actually went to high school with this guy and am trying to get old pictures and what not.

I can't believe he put his face on his business cards. I don't think I've ever seen that before.

This guy is such a royal douche. He was at the "prestigious" University of Delaware for 5 years only getting 1 degree?!?! Quite the brilliant scholar and heir.

Also, judging by his quotes espicially "Not a single morsel of food was placed out since guests crossed the threshold." What a assclown. He talks like he is in fucking Oliver Twist or some other Dickens book. His speech reminds me of the Indian guy that was on here awhile back that badly wanted to be British. The one who spoke of engaging in "fisticuffs" with classmates over his great country when he was in grade school. Wasn't that guy from Philly too?

Grasshoppper Recipe....I shit you not.

25 ml BOLS - Peppermint (Creme de Menthe)
25 ml BOLS - Creme de Cacao (Clear)
35 ml Double Cream

Anybody care to speculate as to the origins of the cream?

I didn't know you could mix the 3 biggest queen liquers into one cocktail. Guys, did it come with a little umbrella? Seriously. Amazing.

It's obvious you don't care what I think because if you did, you would've taken a pic of his rainbow vest/ fag suit on your cell phone camera so I could have a new background for my computer.
That's ok though, I HAVE HUNDREDS of people who are willing to work for me FOR FREE. I AM THE BIGGEST SUCCESS IN NJ!! I WAS ON TELEVISION AND HAD A $10,000 FIREWORK DISPLAY FOR MY DATE ON BLIND DATE!
Now I'm going to find a way to get you arrested for sitting on a chair that belongs to a restaurant. You are going down in flames, Ginnsu. You have no idea what you're up against! You won't mock me!! IT'S TIME TO THROW DOWN!

...right after I finish my Grasshopper.

Now for anyone who wants me to schedule a party for them...

I'm pretty sure it's supposed to be blended, too. It's basically a slushy. Only green and for douche bags. I've never been asked to to make it once, but I seem to recall being showed how.

Are you sure you don't mean to be stupid? It's little late for subterfuge. How many people named Sean hang out with DiMeo in the first place, let alone meet him for drinks to discuss some kind of promotion in a specific part of town, were with a guy he went to high school with and saw him order a girly frozen drink? Yeah, mum's the word on this one.

Good point, but regardless if he knows its me, the fun will still come. I am in Rittenhouse and so is he and we know allot of the same people so the info will flow. And I am in no way worried about the Hammer coming after me! Shit!! He has the approve comment thing in place! But at least now he may come and argue which will be fun!

Here's a follow-up report, for those of us wildly entertained by the exploits of the Blueberry Prince.

http://www.philly.com/mld/philly/en...y_michael_klein

My favorite part:

Quote:

> One other unsettled issue: Like many promoters, DiMeo identified the party as a benefit; he advertised a tie to Temple University's Sbarro Health Research Organization (SHRO).
> SHRO attorney Dirk M. Simpson said Tuesday that when the organization learned of the party in early December, "we requested in writing that they remove our name" from ads.
> DiMeo replied that Antonio Giordano, who heads SHRO, "gave me the green light to go ahead and it was as simple as that." Either way, DiMeo says he's out a lot of money.

I wonder what ADIII is going to do for extra cash? I suggest he get himself as much extra work on "CSI: New York" as possible: I hear they always need people to play the background corpses in the morgue. (And knowing him, he'll probably add that to his SAG resume as "feature work on a highly acclaimed and prestigious CBS network television show".)

This is completely insane, so pathetic to be known as the blueberry heir that sues.
There was a Dimeo sighting, I spotted him on 76, bluetooth earpiece and all. I thought he spotted me but that could have just been the lazy eye. I'm surprised that the DMV passed him with his bizarre eye affliction.

I live in Philly in Rittenhouse and I routinely see this dude at the Irish Pub on 20th and Walnut. He is always way over-dressed, generally comes in alone and always acts like a fool. I know a bunch of the bartenders and I date a girl who used to wait tables there and they all said he would come in, try to flaunt his money, hit on girls and generally just act like an asshole.

Plus... Pressler's column in PW casued so much controversy that she was picked up to write a column for Philadelphia Magazine.

This guy is such a tool... I am amazed he has not been beaten in the street.

Maybe you just have to be on Renamity's "exclusive, invite only" list to see the page. That's how all the other "highly respected" public relations and special event firms do it.
